ON THE SYNTAX OF THE SAMOKOV DIALECT

(Summary)

The paper presents the main features of the syntax of the Samokov dialect including both ones typical for Bulgarian as a whole and dialect-specific ones.

The first part deals with the syntax of the phrase with an emphasis on the special use of prepositions and on attributive phrases. The second section is focused on the specificities in the structure of the simple sentence where a number of factors are taken into account - the use of verb forms, the characteristics of the subject, the object and of subject and object modifiers. The third section deals with the word order of the simple sentence including peculiar types of inversion observed, distant positioning of sentence constituents, as well as clitics word order.
